About Model United Nations

Model United Nations, commonly known as MUN, is an educational simulation of the United Nations. In a MUN conference, students represent different countries as delegates in United Nations committees.

Each delegate researches the policies and viewpoints of their allotted country, participates in formal discussions and debates, presents speeches, negotiates with other delegates and contributes towards drafting resolutions on important international issues.

MUN is one of the most recognised co-curricular platforms for students worldwide. It promotes experiential learning and strengthens skills that are valuable for academics, leadership roles, college applications, scholarships and future professional opportunities.

No prior MUN experience is required. Students participating for the first time are most welcome, as complete guidance and training will be provided before the conference.

Committees and Agendas

1. UNGA First Committee — DISEC (Disarmament and International Security Committee)

Agenda: Addressing the implications of artificial intelligence in the military domain for international peace and security, with special emphasis on the regulation of lethal autonomous weapons systems.

2. United Nations Human Rights Council — UNHRC
