

- The moral arc of universe is long but it bends towards justice.

Good morning one and all,

Hi, I am Parinita from India Congress, India. The ~~day~~ sun is bright, we're having a topic to speak of justice and fight, so let's throw some light on our today's issue.

Now, the time is here to talk about many things, one of them is necessity of reforms in India's justice delivery system.

A country, ~~or~~ a set or a clique demands certain laws to cease abhorrence, for leveled functioning and providing justice to all.

Police hostility and delinquency has now become the most common topic to confer about all over the world. There is bias, unfair treatment and brutality as well as selective persecution of particular communities. As a result of this, our country has become Bandit territory.

The police batters the one who attempts to protest against the laws made and express their reluctance to follow a regulation passed. The police at times turns out to be biased and misconducts with the one who belongs to a different religion, caste and race.

At times, police needs to be vicious in order to put the one in can who is spreading loath and savagery. However, unescorting the power that they got, they should percieve and ensure that the one who is innocent should not become inlent and should not be harmed anyway.

Our country requires regulations and laws against police brutality, in order to overcome this predicament and provide justice to all.

Since, India has Parliamentary form of government having federalism, the judicial system, instead of bracing these illegal gestures of police system, should stand and adjudicate against them.

To conclude I would love to say, It is only ~~an~~ an enmity and contempt free India with a lot of warmth and intimacy is all we want. Rather than being impulsive and capricious, one should sink all the differences, join hands together and wipe the slate clean without loath and hatred in their hearts.

— How would you ~~face~~ endure if becomes the assault of this illegal brutality? .

"If someone puts their hands on you, make sure they never ~~put~~ put their hands on anybody else again" .
